Sustainable Energy Center (SERC)

Sustainable Energy Research Center (SERC) was founded in 2009 as the “Center of Excellence” at Cyprus International University. Since then, the center has carried out many research projects mainly on Solar Energy and certification/education programs. In addition to the PV Power Plant project, SERC is carrying out many studies. Some of these studies are listed below:

- Active consultancy for numerous solar power projects such as the PV project of the Civil Defense Organization, the PV project of Middle Eastern Technical University.
- PV Expert Certification Programs (Three-days program that includes introduction, system definitions, techno-economic analysis, and on-site practices)
- Multiple Research Projects on Photovoltaics, Solar Thermal Systems, Energy Efficiency/Management, Energy Policies, Biogas
- Consultancy to the Ministry of Economy and Energy of Northern Cyprus on Renewable Energy and Energy Policy

Center of Applied Research on Business, Economics, and Technology (CARBET)

Current advances in technology have led to an unavertable interdisciplinary synergy between different fields. In this manner, the research center focuses on and contributes to all kinds of research segments involving interdisciplinary relations in the fields of Economics, Business, Innovation and Technology. The Center's focus is not limited to interdisciplinary research, but also to relevant search topics from the mentioned fields or industrial-related research that fall in the interest area of CARBET. The key concentration of the research center is on environmental management studies such as ecological systems, green economy, energy engineering, water management and sustainability. The center provides advisory services, executive programs, teaching and training, workshops, and seminars. CARBET also collaborates with research centers at overseas universities/organizations.
