As part of our comprehensive Sustainable Commuting Policy and commitment to reducing our carbon footprint, Cyprus International University actively promotes and facilitates remote working for eligible employees while simultaneously expanding our academic flexibility through online course offerings. Recognising that a significant portion of our operational emissions stems from daily commuting, we have institutionalised flexible work arrangements as a standard practice for staff, reducing single-occupancy vehicle trips. This commitment to operational flexibility is mirrored in our academic delivery; we have systematically developed a robust portfolio of online courses, particularly for high-enrolment service courses required across multiple programs. This dual-pronged strategy significantly diminishes the university's collective carbon footprint by minimising the need for physical travel for both employees and students. Furthermore, it enhances work-life balance for staff and provides accessible, inclusive learning opportunities for our student body, solidifying CIU's position as a modern, adaptable, and environmentally responsible institution.
